

Security Expert Forms New Company

Oct. 22, 2003 - NEW YORK, The former director of security and intelligence operations for New York City's Office of Emergency Management is forming a new company focusing of security assessments for Fortune 1000 companies with an eye on partnering with security firms.

Sal Lifrieri, who managed New York's security intelligence and counter surveillance operations from January 1996 to January 2001, has formed Protective Countermeasures and Consulting (PCC) and will serve as its president and CEO. Lifrieri, most recently executive vice president of Diversified Security Solutions, says in a statement that his new company is looking to partner with other security companies on an outsourcing basis.

"Our niche specialty in threat and vulnerability assessments as well as counter eavesdropping and surveillance can be very valuable to other security firms," Lifrieri says. "Protective Countermeasures and Consulting can help these companies expand their product offerings and services without the investment in staffing and training."

Copyright © 2006 Security Sales & Integration. All rights reserved. All material on this site including but not limited to images and text may not be duplicated, reproduced, redistributed or re-transmitted in any form without the express written permission of Security Sales & Integration.